RETURN ON MOBILITY™

You need a partner who understands the mobile worker, the nature of mobile tasks and the systems needed to turbo-charge both.

At Psion Teklogix, we're continually analyzing the factors that drive Return on Mobility™ and we design solutions that reflect this understanding. Whether it's a warehouse worker replenishing the shelves, a field service engineer making an on-site repair or a courier delivering a package, a few seconds improvement in a task's efficiency soon multiplies out to thousands of man-hours per month.

When we design a rugged mobile computer or data collection terminal, we're acutely aware of every little nuance that might affect efficiency. To the mobile worker, it's the way their thumb just happens to rest on the scan button. To managers, it all adds up to real money.

We have taken up this same philosophy in developing the accessories that work alongside—and inside—our products. We've developed a series of Productivity Packs for many of our products, including devices and key accessories to make implementation of Psion Teklogix devices more practical and more efficient.

These Packs take into account more than the mobile computer's application, but also how it will be used. Will the devices need to be powered up and ready to go for multiple shifts? We've created the Power Pack, including multiple devices with spare batteries and a gang charger.

Concerned about applications where the touchscreen is the main point of input? We've created the Touch Pack to ensure that you have the screen protectors and straps to keep your workers at task.

Worried your environment is too harsh? With our I-serv Service Pack, we can keep devices where they belong, in the hands of your workers.
